Pink blooming Roses, Sunrose and Peony complement the summer and fall foliage. Light : Full Sun to Partial Shade Uses: Hedge, privacy, specimen,
	Berberis thunbergii 'Rosy Glow' Rosy Glow Barberry $7.97 Container: 1Gal	Size: 3-6'x4-7' Bloom Time: April-May	Rosy Glow is one of the most striking of the barberries. It's leaves are not just burgundy, but they are red and purple and crimson and pink, with streaks and stripes mixing it all together. And the red stems are almost as colorful as the leaves. The yellow flowers in spring are nice, but unnecessary, as the leaves are the star of this plant. Watch out for the thorns when pruning, but they do make this a great choice for deer resistance. Light : Full Sun Uses: Hedge, privacy, specimen,
	Bergenia cordifolia DRAGONFLY™ 'Angel Kiss' Angel Kiss Bergenia $7.97 Container: 1Gal	Size: 10"x12" Bloom Time: Early to late spring	Angel Kiss is a dwarf bergenia, getting only about 10" tall with a 12" spread. Large green elephant-ear leaves get a red-purple tone in fall that lasts through winter. Flowers are snow-white at first, getting a pink glow as they mature. Light : Uses: Ground cover, accent, rock garden, edging, border
	Blechnum spicant Deer Fern $7.97 Container: 1Gal	Size: 2'x2' Bloom Time: None	Deer ferns are a northwest native. They are perfect for shady spots. Two kinds of fronds give this fern some pizzazz. A nice, stately mound of sterile fronds are topped with wispy fertile fronds that sway in the wind. This evergreen beauty is also deer resistant! Light : Partial Shade to Full Shade Uses: Accent, woodland garden, shade
	Buxus microphylla japonica 'Winter Beauty' Winter Beauty Boxwood $7.97 Container: 1Gal	Size: 4'x4' Bloom Time: April	Winter Beauty boxwood is a mounded form of the common hedge plant. Its foliage is dark green. This plant grows slowly and keeps to its intended form well, so it does not need much pruning. What really sets Winter beauty apart, however, is the fall and winter color, which is a lustrous bronzey green. It is also a versatile plant that can be used for topiary, pruned into a tree form, or used for bonsai, as well as a low hedge or edging around the garden. Light : Full Sun to Partial Shade Uses: Hedges, edges, topiary, bonsai, specimen
	Buxus x 'Green Mountain' 'Green Mountain' Boxwood $7.97 Container: 1Gal	Size: 5'x3' Bloom Time: Spring	Green Mountain boxwood is a vigorously growing evergreen with a dense, upright growth. The tiny leaves are bright green all year round, creating interest in the garden no matter the season. If left unsheared, the plant will create a natural pyramidal shape. It makes an excellent hedge plant. If left alone, it will grow at a moderate rate to the height of about 5 feet tall, and can spread to 3 feet wide. This shrub works well in the garden or as a specimen plant in a large pot. Light : Full Sun to Partial Shade Uses: Hedges, edges, topiary, bonsai, specimen

	Botanical Name	Common Name	Description
	Heuchera 'Lime Rickey'
	Heuchera 'Obsidian' Obsidian Coral Bells		Obsidian has dark jet-black glossy leaves in spring, much like its namesake. It is one of the darkest coral bells there is. The sprays of creamy white flowers in early summer make for a nice contrast.
	Heuchera 'Pink Pearls' Pink Pearls Coral Bells		Pink and Pearls has light burgundy foliage that deepens from spring to fall. Although a smaller variety, she stands up tall, looking very proud of her pink pearls. The flowers are bigger than most heuchera and really add to the beauty.
	Heuchera 'Ruby Bells' Ruby Bells Heuchera
	Heucherella CASCADE™ Plum Cascade Plum Cascade Heucherella		The first silvery purple heucherella! This is a trailing variety, which means it is perfect as a ground cover or for a hanging basket. It only gets about 8 inches tall, but will spread up to 4 feet. It looks breathtaking spilling over a rock wall or hanging basket, and the pink flowers are a perfect complement to the silvery purple leaves.
	Hibiscus syriacus 'Aphrodite' Aphrodite Rose of Sharon		Aphrodite is a beautiful rose of sharon with large pink flowers that have a dark red eye. The flowers may begin to appear in June, depending on how warm the spring is. Once the flowers emerge, though, they will last into October. Aphrodite loves to show off, so plant her as a specimen or use her as a hedge. Her flowers attract butterflies.
	Hibiscus Syriacus 'Double Red' Double Red Rose of Sharon		Rose of Sharon, or Hibiscus, plants are highly valued for their late and long season blooms. 'Double Red' features lovely white flowers tinged with a hint of pink, and right in the center of each blossom is deep red. Although Rose of Sharon can get quite tall if you want (up to 10 feet), it is easy to prune and keep down to a nice, compact 4-6' shrub. Partial shade is ok, but you will get more blooms if in full sun.
	Holodiscus discolor

	Pennisetum alopecuroides 'Burgundy Bunny' Burgundy Bunny Fountain Grass $7.97 Container: 1Gal Size: 16"x16" Bloom Time: Mid summer to mid fall	If you love fountain grass but don't have the room for a large grass, this one is for you! It only gets about 16" tall and wide! Foliage is deep green with striking red mixed in starting in summer. By fall they are completely red. Light : Full Sun Uses: Accent, border, container, edging massed
	Pennisetum alopecuroides 'Hameln' Dwarf Fountain Grass $7.97 Container: 1Gal Size: 30"x30" Bloom Time: August to October	Dwarf fountain grass is a lovely mounding form of grass, usually reaching a size of two to 2 1/2 feet tall and wide. The flowers appear like stalks of wheat, silvery to pinkish white. They look very much like water spraying from a fountain. The foliage and flowers fade to orange-bronze in fall and beige in winter. Cut back the old foliage in February, before the new shoots emerge in spring. Light : Full Sun to Partial Shade Uses: Drought tolerant, erosion control, accent, specimen, wet soil
	Penstemon heterophyllus 'Electric Blue' Electric Blue Penstemon $7.97 Container: 1Gal Size: 18"x18" Bloom Time: Mid-late summer	Penstemons are a fall-blooming American native that provides late-season food for hummingbirds and butterflies. These are a carefree and drought resistant plant. The flowers rise above the plant on flowering spikes and are a purple-bluish, but can sometimes turn "Electric Blue" when the conditions are right. They make great cut flowers, too! Light : Full Sun to Partial Shade Uses: Attracts butterflies and hummingbirds, Accent, border, containers,

	Phormium 'Shiraz' Shiraz New Zealand Flax $7.97 Container: QT	Size: 3'x3'	Shiraz is a compact form of the New Zealand flax, growing to about 2-3 feet tall, and slightly wider. The burgundy wine foliage maintains its color year-round, sometimes with tints of red. White flowers appear in summer. This one goes really well with smaller grasses of yellow to gold colors. Hardy to 15 degrees, so keep in a sheltered, warm, dry and sunny part of the yard. Light : Full Sun Uses: Specimen, accent, Dry sunny spot
	Physocarpus opulifolius 'Center Glow' Center Glow Ninebark $7.97 Container: 1Gal	Bloom Time: May-June	Center glow is a new striking ninebark plant. Gorgeous new foliage come out a bright rosy red with a golden yellow center. The leaves mature to deep burgundy. White flowers bloom late spring, followed by bright red fruit. And then there's the curling layers of bark to enjoy in winter. Light : Full Sun Uses: Specimen, hedge, border, in mass
	Physocarpus opulifolius 'Monlo' Diablo Ninebark $7.97 Container: 1Gal	Bloom Time: May-June	This plant has become all the rage recently in gardening circles. It grows similarly to the species, but its leaves emerge deep purple. In our cooler-summer region those leaves will maintain that color all summer long. It can be trained to grow in a 'standard' tree form, which reveals the crème peeling bark. The pink to white flower clusters really make a huge impact against those wonderful leaves! Ninebark will respond well to heavy pruning each year. Looks best in mass plantings, or as a border. Light : Full Sun to Partial Shade Uses: Specimen, hedge, border, in mass
	Physostegia virginiana 'Autumn Carnival' Autumn Carnival Obedient Plant $7.97 Container: 1Gal	Bloom Time: Late summer to mid fall	Obedient flowers grow straight and narrow. This one is non-invasive, forming a low-care bushy clump. Spikes of soft lavender-pink flowers appear in late summer and throughout the fall, providing late-season nectar for butterflies. Prefers rich, moist soil. It can grow in clay and tolerates wet conditions. Light : Full Sun Uses: Clay soil, border, accent, container, cut flower, waterside, butterflies
	Pieris japonica 'Mountain Fire' Mountain Fire pieris $7.97 Container: 1Gal	Bloom Time: March, April	Pieris plants are one of those rare plants that are spectacular in every season. In late winter they hang heavily with massive clusters of bell-shaped flowers. In spring new growth emerges bright red. They continue to change colors all through the summer and fall-red, yellow, orange, green. Bead-like flower buds set late in the summer and look great all winter atop the evergreen leaves. Then they start all over again. The new growth of Mountain Fire is particularly stunning, and the flower clusters particularly full. Light : Full Sun to Partial Shade Uses: Specimen, border, containers, hedge
	Pinus mugo var. pumilio Dwarf Mugo Pine $7.97 Container: 1Gal	Bloom Time:	The ultimate Dwarf Mugo Pine, also known as Swiss Mountain Pine, maintains a dense, compact habit of growth. This is the most popular small conifer. Mugo is also the ultimate in no care. A little pruning once in a while is all it needs. It is extremely drought-tolerant. Light : Full Sun to Partial Shade Uses: Suitable for xeriscaping; provides winter interest

	Prunus laurocerasus 'Otto Luyken' Otto Luyken English Laurel $7.97 Container: 1Gal	Size: 3'x6'	English laurels have long been used for evergreen hedging, especially in urban areas. They do a phenomenal job of keeping out pollution and noise from city streets. This variety is a compact spreading version, with narrower, darker green leaves and more noticeable flowers than the standard kinds. Bloom Time: Spring Light : Full Sun to Partial Shade Uses: Hedge, specimen, border, urban garden
	Prunus x cistena Purple Leaf Sandcherry $7.97 Container: 1Gal	Size: 6'x4'	Similar in appearance to the cherry and plum trees, but this is a small, beautiful shrub. It opens with pink flowers that are fragrant! As the flowers fade they are replaced with deep reddish-purple leaves that last until fall. Even the bark is an attractive reddish-brown. Bloom Time: May Light : Full Sun to Partial Shade Uses: Specimen, container, small groupings
	Rhododendron 'Nova Zembla' Nova Zembla Rhododendron $11.00 Container: 1Gal	Size: 6-8'x5-7'	Gorgeous flowers are bright red in shadier locations, more of a deep rosy pink in sunnier spots. Either way, a dark blotch of freckles add more color to each blossom. Grows with an upright habit to 8' tall, 6-7' wide. Bloom Time: Mid to late spring Light : Partial Shade to Full Shade Uses: Specimen, hedge, attracts butterflies and hummingbirds, foundation
	Rhododendron 'Percy Wiseman' Percy Wiseman Rhododendron $11.00 Container: 1Gal	Size: 3-4'x3-4'	I don't know who Percy Wiseman is, but he is lucky to have this one named after him. What a beautiful display of flowers. They pop out in shades of peach, pink, cream, red, and a few other colors all mixed in there. The leaves are pretty, too, with fuzzy tan undersides. It's a vigorous but compact rhody, too. Bloom Time: Spring Light : Full Sun to Partial Shade Uses: Specimen, hedge, attracts butterflies and hummingbirds, foundation
	Rhododendron 'PJM Regal' PJM Regal Rhododendron $11.00 Container: 1Gal	Size: 6'x7'	PJM Regal is a popular form of rhododendron. Smothered in bright clusters of lightly-fragrant purple-fuschia flowers in mid-spring. Leaves turn purplish in fall, lasting through winter. The foliage has a slight lemon fragrance. PJMs are the easiest varieties of rhododendrons to grow, requiring very little care. PJMs also prefer a little more sun than most rhodies. Bloom Time: Spring Light : Full Sun to Partial Shade Uses: Specimen, mass planting, accent
	Rhododendron 'Weston's Aglo' Weston's Aglo Rhododendron $11.00 Container: 1Gal	Size: 3'x3'	This is a little-leaf rhododendron, with glossy green that turn coppery bronze in winter.  Rudbeckia fulgida 'Goldsturm'	Goldstrum Black-eyed Susan	Goldsturm Black-eyed Susan is one of the best plants you will find for your borders. They form bushy clumps of foliage and put on a display of profuse flowering of their famous golden flowers with a black "eye" in the center. These flowers are a favorite of butterflies and some birds. They have a long late-season bloom period, from mid summer well into fall. Their seedheads can be left over winter to provide more visual interest. Goldstrum is especially stunning when used in mass plantings, or in pockets throughout your landscape. Goldstrum was selected as Perennial Plant of the Year in 1999.

	Sambucus nigra 'Eva' Black Lace Elderberry		Black Lace is a beautiful, unusual elderberry plant. She has deeply cut dark purple foliage similar to the lace leaf Japanese maples. The leaves are fragrant, with a hint of lemon scent. When she blooms, her pink flowers look amazing against the dark leaves. These are followed by dark blackish-red elderberries that you can eat. They make great jelly or wine. Use Black Lace as a specimen plant in a border, or place them in a hedge. She prefers moist soil, so she is a good candidate for a rain garden.

	Solanum lycopersicum 'Super Sweet 100'	Super Sweet 100 Cherry Tomato	A compact form of goldenrod with bright lemon yellow flowers over a long period in late summer. This is an important source of nectar for butterflies in late summer and fall.
	Solidago 'Barseven'	Sweety Goldenrod	Goldrush will give you a brilliant flash of yellow-gold flowers from summer through fall. Butterflies love the flowers, too!
	Solidago cutleri 'Solbut'	Goldrush Golden Rod	A neat mound of dark green foliage is covered in neon-red/magenta flowers all summer long, from early June well into September or longer. In fall the leaves turn a dark burgundy before falling off. Spireas are a favorite of bees, butterflies and birds.
	Spirea japonica 'Neon Flash'	Neon Flash Spirea	Goldflame is most beloved for its leaves, which emerge in flaming reds, bronzes and yellows in mid-spring. They fade to a soft green during the summer, but return to flaming hues in fall once again. They also show off pink clusters of flowers throughout the summer. Goldflame is one of the smallest of the spireas, usually reaching a maximum height of less than 3 feet, but easily maintained to as small as 18". They form niceley shaped rounded mounds without much effort.
	Spirea x bumalda 'Goldflame'	Gold Flame Spirea	Anthony Waterer spireas are one of the most popular plants for corporate and residential landscaping projects. That is because they are hardy, dependable plants that bloom every year for several weeks, look nice even when they aren't blooming, and don't require much care or pruning to keep them looking nice every year. As with all spirea plants, these are popular with the bees and butterflies.
	Spirea x bumalda 'Anthony Waterer'	Anthony Waterer Spirea	Gold Mound is just like it sounds. It forms a low mound that is easy to maintain, and the leaves spend most of their time colored a gold, or yellow-gold. They do get kind of fiery colored in the fall, too! Flowers are pink, blooming in mid-summer and attracting the butterflies.
	Spirea x bumalda 'Gold Mound'	Gold Mound Spirea	Lamb's ears don't flower very often, but that's OK because everybody loves lamb's ears for their leaves. The foliage is luxuriously soft, velvety and silver-green, like a lamb's ear. Kids love the leaves, and they make a nice addition to flower arrangements. They make a good ground cover or edging in a border. They are deer resistant.
